About This Game

We are organizing a tournament that will be held in Single player mode on a popular game. All the owners of the game can take part in the competition after they qualify.

Prize fund: 1000 $ + 10% of the game sales, 64 places paid, the qualification stage will last for 4 months.

A slight step into cybersport should make more players involved. We invite all the Tower defense fans to participate and, of course, new players are also welcomed to join us!

DESCRIPTION

Playing this game, you will find yourself in a world where there is magic and technology. Helping an insane scientist in search of the unknown, you can visit the most amazing places: from forests, to wild and dangerous lands, inhabited by various amazing creatures, from relatively harmless, ending with ancient, incredibly dangerous creatures.

Coping with them will help you inventions and findings of this most mad scientist, whom you have to defend, while he ... invent something, well, or dig it out, it does not matter, the main thing somehow works, right?

At your disposal will be a wide variety of towers: from machine guns to mass accelerators. You will even have the opportunity to roast someone with lightning, arrange an ice field or cause meteor shower.

Would be a very good game except for the inability to control who your tower shoots at. It's aggravating to no end to see your tower attacking some monster at the rear when the first in the line strolls into the goal causing you to loose lives. You can designate whether a tower will attack the strongest, nearest, weakest, random or first but , unfortunately, the towers will not follow your directions much of the time. It got too frustrating for me. I just had to give up on the game.
